First Break In Twin Strikes Comes Today

Miners and Operators at Cleveland Arranging Details of Agreement Already Reached—1920 Scale, Including Check-off, To Stand.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Cleveland, O., Aug. 11.—Miners and operators, members of the sub scale committee, appointed at the joint scale conference late yesterday, today went into executive session to write the scale which will end the coal strike which has tied up production in all union and some non-union fields for nearly 19 weeks, and brought the nation to the brink of its most serious fuel famine.

The sub scale committee consists of two miners and two operators from each state in the Central Competitive Field—Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Western Pennsylvania—as well as the officers of the international union of mine workers and the conference. In all, 22 men sat down at the conference table at the Hollenden Hotel today to find a way to adjust the differences and reopen the mines.

Failure, it was confidently said by men representing either side of the controversy, was impossible, as the terms already had been agreed upon. The 1920 wage scale will be accepted, with all of its major provisions, including the check-off.

Officially represented at the conference today was an annual coal production of 40,030,000 tons—approximately 20 percent of the total annual production of the basing field. It was said, however, that between 60,000,000 and 70,000,000 tons additional had representatives and that these were prepared to join as soon as assured that a scale would be written.

2 SHOP WORKERS ARE MURDERED

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Cleveland, O., Aug. 11.—William H. Down, 28, and Fritz Forschner, 23, employes of the Collinwood shops of the New York Central here, were shot and killed early today while on their way home from work. Their assailant is believed to have mistaken them for men recently imported as strike breakers. Down had been employed at the shops for nearly ten years, while Forschner was also an employe of several years' standing.

Charles Schweitzer and William Johnson were badly beaten by men said to have been strike sympathizers.

REPUBLICAN CONVENTION BEATS "OLD HOME WEEK"

Handshaking Men and Women Impress Visitors.

After watching the men and women delegates who numbered 266 attending the Republican unofficial county convention Thursday afternoon as they passed John and Fair streets on their way to the Kingston Opera House, and later when they came out when a recess was taken for dinner, several guests from out of town at the Hotel Stuyvesant across the street, were greatly interested in watching the handshaking between the men and the women delegates. They were of the opinion that the holding of the unofficial convention in Ulster county was something that every county should emulate.

"This beats an old-time week, going and coming," remarked a New York man. "The fellow who got up this convention is surely on his job, and I'll bet anything this county is Republican by a big majority. Can't see how it can be anything else with such an intelligent lot of men as you can see laughing and talking good naturedly together."

THREE WORKING DAYS FOR COLONIAL SQUAD

This afternoon the Colonials will invade Tannersville, to try and even up matters with the mountaineers. This contest has caused a great amount of interest among baseball enthusiasts and an exodus of Kingston fans was on today.

Commission to Pass on Hasbrouck Estate Claim

County Attorney John W. Eckert will apply at a special term of the supreme court in Monticello on August 26 for the appointment of commissioners of appraisal to fix the amount of damages to be paid by Ulster county to the estate of Dr. Josiah Hasbrouck for the taking of the land occupied by the road leading to the Rondout Creek Bridge.

This road was built on the land of the Hasbrouck estate under a permission granted by the trustees of the estate, without prejudice to their claim for damages, which will be fixed by the commissioners about to be appointed. The damages finally decided on will be a charge against the county of Ulster, as in other cases where land is taken for the building of a state highway.

All Is Harmony At Republican Convention

W. N. Conner Wins Only Contest, for Coroner—Ward Recommended for Another Term in Congress and Arthur T. Boughton of Roxbury to Succeed Walton in State Senate.

The slate adopted and recommended at the unofficial Republican county convention, held Thursday at the Opera House for the purpose of designating candidates at Ulster's choice to be voted for at the coming primaries, is as follows:

Member of Congress—Charles B. Ward.

State Senator—Arthur T. Boughton of Roxbury.

Member of Assembly—Simon B. Van Wagenen, Sleightsburgh.

County Treasurer—William H. Van Etten, Kingston.

District Attorney—Frederick G. Traver, Kingston.

Coroner — W. Norman Conner, Kingston.

Immediately after the noon recess the convention got down to business and with the exception of coroner there was no contest. For this office there were three names placed in nomination and a roll call was taken by Secretary John W. Eckert which resulted in Mr. Conner receiving 132 of the 238 votes cast. William C. Kukuk received 77 votes and Ernest A. Kelly 29 votes.

The first matter of business taken up after the recess was the naming of the two members from each district as members of the county comittee and the naming of the thirteen delegates and thirteen alternate delegates to the Republican State Convention which is held on September 27 at Albany. H. J. Pratt offered the following resolution:

Resolved, that the following named persons be nominated delegates and alternate delegates respectively to attend the Republican State Convention, appointed to be held at the City of Albany on the 27th day of September, 1922.

For Delegates.

1. Philip Elting, Kingston.
2. Martin Cantine, Saugerties.
3. Philip [illegible], Highland.
4. Grace V. Merritt, Kingston.
5. Frank J. LeFevre, New Paltz.
6. John D. Fratsher, Saugerties.
7. Cleon B. Murray, Ellenville.
8. Grace Boyd, Wallkill.
9. Simon B. Van Wagenen, Sleightsburgh.
10. Matthew H. Herzog, Kingston.
11. John Rusk, Marlborough.
12. Samuel S. Brown, Kingston.
13. DeWitt W. Ostrander, Clintondale.

For Alernate Delegates.

1. John M. Cashin, Kingston.
2. John A. Snyder, Saugerties.
3. Edward E. Murray, Walker Valley.
4. Marsen Ross, Kingston.
5. Joel Brink, Lake Katrine.
6. Harry Wells, Saugerties.
7. Jacob Hornbeck, Ellenville.
8. Stratton D. Todd, Arkville.
9. Charles C. Upright, Gardiner.
10. Elizabeth McElhone, Wallkill.
11. Gross B. Schoonmaker, Accord.
12. Silas S. Auchmoedy, Rosendale.
13. Lester L. Sagendorf, Zena.

The resolution was adopted.

Chairman Elting then announced that recommendations for Ulster's choice as member of congress was in order. Attorney John M. Cashin of this city immediately arose and placed in nomination the name of Charles B. Ward. Mr. Cashin in placing the name in nomination stated that two years ago he had addressed a similar meeting at the same place and for the same purpose and that he did not hesitate to again place Mr. Ward's name before the convention as the record which Mr. Ward had made during his last term was one of the best. No job was ever to large or too small for Mr. Ward's attention. The nomination was seconded and there being no other candidates the secretary was authorized to cast a unanimous ballot for Mr. Ward.

The chair appointed John M. Cashin and Miss Grace V. Merritt a committee to escort Mr. Ward to the platform.

Mr. Ward said in part: "It is hard to realize that I have been here seeking your endorsement as the Republican party candidate for Congress six times and six times I have received your endorsement and hearty and loyal support for which I sincerely thank you. As far as member of Congress is considered, the only issue in the coming election is prohibition and the soldier bonus. I voted against the Volstead act because I believed it was encroaching too far on the rights of the individual. However, it is a law and I always stand for the enforcement of the law. Time will prove without a doubt that it is impossible to enforce the law. I am opposed to the return of the saloon but on account of the conditions which I have observed within and without government departments makes me more opposed than ever to prohibition.

"I voted against the soldier bonus because I believed the bill financially unsound in principle and that acts of patriotism can't be bought and paid for. No provision was made for the dependents of men who died on the field of battle. A visit to France showed the magnitude of the undertaking."

He spoke of his visit to France at the close of the war and of the scenes which he visited. "At Chateau Thiery, 50 miles from Paris I saw the shattered bridge over the Marne where the tide was turned back from Paris by boys fighting under the American banner and the women and children of that city knew that it was only the American banner that could save them." (Applause). Mr. Ward spoke of the rows of crosses on the field of battle, silent and imperishable monuments to the boys who fell and under the bill as presented to Congress, for the dependents of these boys who fought and fell in the field of honor there was no provision. He said that the bill must be made financially sound as well as provide for the dependents of the boys who gave their lives in the great struggle. In conclusion he pledged himself to vote in the future if elected as he saw the right regardless of the political future.

For the office of senator from this district Senator Charles W. Walton, the present incumbent, addressed the convention and placed in nomination the name of the man who will succeed him as the Republican choice from this county. Senator Walton said he appeared before the convention to suggest and recommend a man who stood for the best interest of the district which he would serve, a man who would support and cooperate with the present administration in continuing the present business policy which Governor Miller promised and which he has so successfully carried out. Senator Walton placed in nomination the name of Arthur T. Boughton of Roxbury, Delaware county. The nomination was seconded and Mr. Fratsher moved that the secretary cast one unanimous ballot for Mr. Boughton, there being no other names before the convention.

The chair appointed Mr. Fratsher and Grace A. Boyd of Wallkill the committee to escort Mr. Boughton to the platform.

Mr. Boughton expressed his appreciation for the honor which had been bestowed upon him by the convention and stated that he had been an active candidate for the office, that if at the general election held this fall he was elected he would make every effort to represent his

Rail Executives Divide on Harding Proposal; Unions Solidly Oppose It; "Big Four" Paralyzing Far West

Committee Drafting Rail Heads' Reply—All Rail Unions Pledge To Fight Together—Progressive Strike Spreads Rapidly in California and Terrorists' Bombs Accompany It.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Aug. 11.—President Harding's second set of proposals for settling the national strike of railway shopmen was formally presented to the railroad executives at their meeting here today. They were discussed at length during the morning session, but no decision was reached. Before adjournment for lunch, a committee was appointed to draft a reply to the president.

The report of this committee was to be taken up at the afternoon session of the executives.

It was understood that, during the morning meeting, sentiment was about evenly divided on accepting the president's propositions with modifications and "standing pat."

S. Davies Warfield, chairman of the Seaboard Air Line and head of the organization for protection of railway investors, and Haley Fiske, president of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, attended the morning session. It was reported that they were acting in behalf of the holders of railway securities.

Washington, Aug. 11. — While President Harding met with his cabinet at the White House today to consider further government action in the grave industrial situation, representatives of the sixteen standard railroad unions went into session eight city blocks away, to formulate a policy of sympathetic action that will make the railroad strike more effective.

These developments were prospect as the two meetings got under way:

1—The striking railway shopmen will reject the president's proposition of Monday for the men to return to work pending a decision on the contentious seniority question by the Railway Labor Board.

2—Other railroad union, including the four powerful brotherhoods will agree upon a policy of sympathetic action to support the strikers without authorizing a general railroad strike.

3—This will be accomplished by authorization of "individual" of "voluntary" strikes by members of affiliated unions whenever and wherever in the judgment of the workers their equipment or working conditions are such as to be prejudicial to life or limb.

4—Union men will be permitted to decide for themselves whether they want to stay on the job—the result of which is expected to be a slow, progressive walkout on the roads by all classes of railroad labor.

5—Railway labor unions not now on strike will combine in a statement of policy to the government, inviting attention to the gravity of the situation, and intimating that unless relief measures are soon found nation-wide paralysis of transportation is inevitable.

6—President Harding will await the replies of both unions and railway executives, meeting in New York today and will then go to congress next week with a special message asking for a legislative grant of broad powers to deal with the situation.

The meeting today of the sixteen standard railroad unions brought together the greatest representation of railroad labor since the days when it massed solidly behind the Adamson eight-hour law, and shoved it through congress.

Los Angeles, Aug. 11.—Paralysis of railroad transportation in southern California loomed as a real possibility today when crews of the Southern Pacific and Western Pacific Railroads were contemplating taking similar action to that of Santa Fe crews by refusing to move guarded trains.

The brotherhood decision, affecting engineers, conductors, firemen and trainmen, was followed almost immediately by cessation of Santa Fe traffic at Barstow and Needles, Calif., and Seligman, Ariz.

The information was flashed to railroad executives that crews on the Southern Pacific, Western Pacific and other lines were considering similar action and it became apparent immediately that Los Angeles was likely to be entirely cut off from rail communication within 24 hours.

The brotherhoods' refusal to move trains because of the presence of armed guards in the yards and on the cars, may be backed up, it was reported, by the transportation men in other districts who claim that equipment of trains is in poor condition as the result of the shopmen's strike.

Brotherhood members declared that no more Santa Fe trains will move through Barstow until further orders are received from the union.

Passenger trains Nos. 1 and 8, delayed at Needles, and the California Limited, were reported backing into Barstow from Newberry because water pumpers there are on strike.

I. L. Hibbard, general coast manager for the Santa Fe, said today that a conference would be held later in the day to determine how passengers at points where trains have been halted, would be taken care of.

San Bernardino, Cal., Aug. 11.—Facing the greatest crisis of the railroad strike, federal and local officers here today spread a huge dragnet for mystery bombers who early today hurled twenty-three deadly missiles into the Sante Fe yards, terrorizing the district for miles around.

Only one man was hurt, Deputy Marshal Alverson being severely burned when a "dud" found at the scenes of the blasts, exploded as it was being taken in an automobile to a chemist for analysis.

Efforts were to be made today to bring passengers on overland trains stalled at desert points through to their destinations by the Sante Fe while negotiations continued between managements and the heads of the "Big Four" brotherhoods who tied up traffic with the east by a walkout last night.

The engineers, conductors and trainmen after warning the railroad officials, refused to take trains through Needles, Cal., because of the presence there of armed guards.

Coast trains so far are not affected.

HORSE THIEVES QUICKLY CAUGHT

Casper Gerlack, of the town of Ulster reported to the sheriff that a dark bay horse owned by him had been stolen from the pasture lot Thursday evening. The horse weighed about 850 pounds and was taken by a party driving a bay horse which was blind in both eyes and which was attached to a black buggy. The Gerlack horse was tied on behind the buggy and the party drove away. Mr. Gerlack is employed by the L. S. Winne Company of this city.

Deputy Sheriff Ernest Ellsworth today went to Shandaken and brought Milton and Vernon Winnie, who had been caught by a Board of Water Supply policeman, before Justice Kennedy, of the town of Ulster. They were charged with grand larceny in the second degree and lodged in jail pending the hearing which was adjourned until next Tuesday.

Later today the two Winnies accompanied Board of Water Supply police to Shandaken where they promised to get Gerlack's horse and return it to him. If this is done it is understood the complaint will be withdrawn.

HATS ARE LARGER

Spreading Headgear Destined to Remain Another Season.

Favorite Models Droop on Sides and Almost Reach Shoulders, Giving Picturesque Addition.

The French, of course, are more willing to go to extremes than we, says a fashion correspondent in the New York Times, but with their lead we are following along into the realm of large and spreading hats. These, too, look as though they were destined to remain for another season.

The larger hats droop on the sides and almost reach the shoulders, giving that picturesque addition to the general mode.

For trimming the latest thing is to apply a roll of velvet about the crown, or a twisting of ribbon—these done in contrasting colors that carry out the idea of the dress which the hat is destined to accompany. The other style which has recommended itself is that which trims the hat with wide and stiff ribbon exactly matching the foundation material of the hat itself.

Thus dainty lace or embroidered otifs may be let in with this effective itch, or, if it is desired to keep the esign quite plain, the following idea ill be found to be pretty and serviceable:

Draw circles on the garment the ze of a penny. Cut the material away om the center leaving just enough turn in to make the edge neat. Turn the edge of the piece cut away; ace this within the circle again, and in the two with a fagot stitch.

The pieces cut away may be made to different shapes and attached to e circle. Squares, triangles, and oblongs form attractive trimmings and esigns of this sort may be elaborated ccording to the wish of the owner, ith a little ingenuity.

A further variation may be made by lling in the space with a different lored material. In this way just the ght distinctive feature is added a severely plain set of lingerie. he set may be carried out in pink epe de chine, and the circles filled with the same mate[illegible] in a blue ade.

KINGSTON, N. Y., AUG. 11, 1922.

President Harding has been deliberate in taking action to put an end to the coal shortage and the railroad tieup, but not more so than the situation warranted or than the dignity of his office demanded. He has been assailed by extremists who think the United States Army should have taken over the mines and roads long ago and operated them, and by those others, like the governor of North Carolina, who believes all labor controversies should be left to settle themselves without interference from the government, either state or national. The president has preferred to steer a middle course. He has summoned every available influence in the interests of arbitration, trying to reach a settlement by discussion rather than through an appeal to force. He has met with a succession of disappointments, and it may be that final solution of the problem lies only in a resort to more drastic means than have yet been employed. If that time comes, President Harding will know that he has exhausted every other means at hand for reaching an understanding, and that resort to the emergency clauses of the Transportation Act is the only alternative left him with which to serve the public welfare.

BOOK CENSORSHIP.

The impression that the old-time dime novel was a Sunday-school book compared with much of the fiction written nowadays is confirmed by a publisher's "reader" who writes in the British Weekly: "I speak with some knowledge, for my profession has brought me into contact with an enormous mass of English and American fiction, published and unpublished. During the last twelve years the tendency of this fiction American as well as English—has changed very much for the worse, and is still rapidly on the decline. There are books written now—though, thank Heaven, they do not always find a publisher—which would not have been tolerated twenty years ago."

The moral deterioration thus noted, and widely remarked upon, explains the activities of John S. Sumner, of the Society for the Suppression of Vice, and his proposal to the Authors' League and the book publishers for a preventive censorship of all new fiction and "sex, medical, scientific and pseudo-scientific" literature. At the same time the quoted expert's "thank heaven, they do not always find a publisher" clearly indicates that there is still, as there has always been, a censorship by the literary counsel of reputable publishing houses. Nor should it be forgotten that there are already laws for the punishment of the publishers and distributers of obscene literature. Under these laws Mr. Sumner himself has lately prosecuted a number of publishers for issuing works that have hitherto been regarded as classics, sometimes winning and sometimes losing his case, the courts not always agreeing with his view and showing that opinions differ as to what may be regarded as really improper.

The Authors' League and the publishers are likely to hold that there is already sufficient restrictive law and censorship, and to express the fear that further restriction will seriously limit the freedom still left to the arts as well as injuriously hamper artistic inspiration. It is complained, and perhaps with reason, that American literature does not measure up in power and artistic excellence to that of the leading foreign nations because there is already too rigid a censorship, or too great a conservatism in this country, particularly on the part of our periodicals of large circulation, a conservatism requiring not only moral cleanliness but deference to dominant opinion, a skimming over the mere surface of things, with ever an optimistic and never a pessimistic outlook, with too little frank realism, and a "happy ending" even when forced and unconvincing in the circumstances. This view is well worth serious consideration. It should be noted also that Mr. Sumner and like reformers appear to lack in appreciation of the fact that there is a difference between old classics of the type of "Tom Jones," the Arabian Nights, the Decameron, etc., and modern offenses of the type of Dreiser's "The Genius." This difference is not readily defined in words, but of its existence there can be no doubt. Intelligent and high-minded readers will tolerate a certain more or less innocent frankness in old classics when they are appalled and disgusted by a sophisticated modern treatment of similar themes involving men and women of the present day.

American missionaries in the Orient are said to complain that they are having trouble because American movie films (now going to all parts of the world) give pictures of "violence" in the United States. If it is desired to give the impression that the missionaries come from an earthly paradise they ought to be very carefully selected.

Though there has been no adjustment of American claims seven years after the sinking of the Lusitania, Senator Underwood protests that so many claims have been allowed against the Alien Property Custodian in favor of German claimants that "it is doubtful if there will be enough property left to secure American claims unless prompt action is taken." Have Senators with hyphenated constituents been managing this matter?

What do you want to know about Nature Subjects? Send any questions of general interest to the Nature Notes Department of this paper, enclosing self-addressed and stamped envelope for reply.

Can You Answer These Questions?

1. Do mice have any voice?
2. Enclosed is a leaf from my grape arbor with small white cocoon. I destroyed about 50 with a brush and kerosene. What is it, and is it harmful, and how can it be exterminated?
3. Do we have any wild parrots in the United States?

Answers in Tomorrow's Nature Notes

Answers to Previous Questions.

1. If birds are driven out from a nesting site, do they ever come back?

As a species, yes.—we cannot speak for individuals, which would be unlikely, however, to choose a site from which they had been ousted. Areas put under protection seem to get "advertised" as safe among the birds, and gradually become repopulated. Along the Maine coast, for instance, the colonies of nesting gulls have increased remarkably within the past decade, the protection now given these birds inducing them to breed freely, as of yore.

2. Is it dangerous to handle dead rats?

It is a bad plan to touch them with bare hands, as often germs of disease are on their bodies. Dead rats should either be burned or buried. It is easy to remove the carcass without touching the human fingers to it, by using a fold of newspaper in handling and then burning the paper. Traps should be plunged into boiling water to disinfect.

3. How old should trees in a wood lot be allowed to grow?

This is not a question of years, but of conditions. If needed for timber, trees should be cut out soon after reaching full size. The age for maturing varies with the kind of tree. There is no virtue in letting timber trees stand indefinitely (this does not apply to ornamental trees, of course) as they deteriorate after reaching a certain point, just as fruit does after ripening. Fully matured ones should be cut, and new trees be grown on the same soil.

GREENE "DRY" RAIDERS ACTIVE

A raiding party made up of District Attorney Curtis of Greene county, four state detectives, four state troopers and Officer Fitzsimmons of Catskill have been making visits to various parts of Greene county this week and searching for and seizing considerable hooch, home brew and other liquor containing over the legally prescribed amount of alcohol. At Leeds they got evidence at four places and brought to Catskill a big truck of home brew. Some alleged evidence was secured at William Bogardus's summer hotel at Cairo and it was said a small quantity of whiskey was secured at Renner's Hotel, on Tuesday, and some material for evidence at the Beach Tree Inn and at the Black Mask. Thursday night the raiders went to Cementon a few miles north of Saugerties just over the Ulster county line, where places were visited and much evidence was taken for analysis.

William Cohen of this city who is the chief federal agent with headquarters at Syracuse, with a squad of a dozen federal prohibition enforcement officers from the Syracuse district on Friday invaded the towns of Maine and Chenango, in Broome county, arrested five alleged manufacturers of intoxicants and seized 1,500 gallons of mash, 350 galloss of alleged whiskey and five neatly equipped stills with capacities of ten and twenty-five gallons each. Arrests were made and the defendants carried in autos to police headquarters at Syracuse, where they gave bail.

Mr. and Mrs. Klein Surprised.

Thursday evening was a particularly festive occasion at Atharhacton Rebekah Lodge. At the close of the business session a short but very enjoyable program was given including vocal solos by Mrs. Robert Jones and a reading by Miss Gerlach. Then Vice-Grand Gerlach with a few well-chosen words conducted Henry Klein, a member of the lodge to the "well," while Mrs. Jones conducted Mr Klein's bride to the same auspicious meeting place, and there the most surprised bride and groom were presented with many pretty, valuable and useful gifts from the lodge members. When they had sufficiently recovered from their surprise and the opening of the gifts, both Mr. and Mrs. Klein expressed feelingly their appreciation of the generosity and hospitality of the lodge members. thus giving another testimony to the record for hospitality and generosity which this lodge has so long held. The delightful evening was brought to a close with the serving of delicious refreshments and a social hour.

Their many friends extend them hearty felicitations and best wishes for a happy and prosperous journey through married life Among the guests present from Ellenville were Mr. and Mrs. Hyman Rosenstock and family, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Rosenstock. Mr. and Mrs S. J. Lipka and George Saltzman.

Poe as a Romancer.

The reader who chanced in youth to come upon one of Poe's finer stories is not likely to have forgotten its impression on his unjaded sense of mystery and beauty. Nor are there many who in mature years, and in t .s heyday of the short story, first become acquainted with the "Tales of the Grotesque and the Arabesque," but must realize the power of their conjuring charm. Taken together they are the fullest exhibit of their author's genius, if not their highest; and if the highest is to be seen in his poetry, which fairly may be debated, the prose tales with their greater volume and diversity lose nothing in comparison.—Stedman.

Fruits and Vegetables.

Rhubarb is a vegetable. In popular usage the word "fruit" applies to the fleshy and juicy product of some plant, usually tree or shrub (and nearly always containing the seed), which when ripe is edible without cooking and adapted for use as a dessert rather than as a salad. Roots, tubers, stems, foliage and that which is botanically the fruit of plants (peas, beans, etc.), when used for culinary purposes, are in a popular sense vegetables. There are a few exceptions. The quince, which is cooked before eating, is a fruit. The tomato is both a fruit and vegetable, though for table use and in the garden and market it ranks as a vegetable only.

RANKS THIRD IN PETROLEUM

Russia's Output in 1921 Amounted to 28,500,000 Barrels, Engineering and Mining Journal Says.

Prior to the outbreak of the war the production of petroleum in Russia amounted to about 20 per cent of the world's production, and, in spite of political and industrial upheaval, the production of soviet Russia still occupies third rank in the countries of the world, says the Engineering and Mining Journal-Press. During the year 1920 the production amounted to 25,400,000 barrels, and in 1921 to 28,500,000 barrels. In the district of Baku the production in 1921 amounted to 155,000,000 poods (thirty-six pounds), as compared with 215,000,000 poods in 1919. In the district of Grosny the monthly production during the second half of 1921 amounted to 6,100,000 poods, and in January, 1922, to 7,100,000 poods. On account of lack of suitable machinery new borings cannot be made. The equipment in the refineries as well as the pipe lines is in bad condition. According to the regulations of the soviet government, adopted at the beginning of the present year, concerning the grant of mineral oil concessions, 30 per cent of the oil produced is reserved to the state and 45 per cent must be reserved for the home demand. Only 25 per cent can be exported, and all export orders must pass through the official mineral oil office. Payments for export orders are to be effected through the State bank, or the oil office, and all payments are to be based on foreign values.

MACAULAY HAD FINE CLOTHES

Learned English Historian and Statesman Had Hobby for Variety of Apparel.

Lord Macaulay, the English historian and statesman and inexhaustible conversationalist, had a mind overstocked with learning And he had a wardrobe overstocked with clothes, according to Margaret Macaulay's "Diary." "Later in life," she writes, "he indulged himself in an apparently inexhaustible succession of handsome embroidered waistcoats, which he would regard with much complacency. He was unhandy to a degree, quite unexampled in the experience of all who knew him. When in the open air he wore perfectly new dark kid gloves, into the fingers of which he never succeeded in inserting his fingers more than half way. After he had sailed for India there were found in his chambers between 50 and 60 strops, hacked into strips and splinters, with razors without beginning or end. About the same period he hurt his hand and was induced to send for a barber. After the operation he asked what he was to pay.

"'Oh, sir,' said the man, 'whatever you usually give the person who shaves you.' 'In that case,' said Macaulay. 'I should give you a great gash on each cheek.'"

Shades of the Laundry.

A San Francisco lady was training a new and inexperienced Chinese house-boy, and among other things found it necessary to teach him how to receive a caller. "Now, Wing," she said, "when I come home this afternoon I shall ring the bell, and you must pay attention to what I tell you to do when you open the door." When the boy did this on her return, she handed him her visiting card and had him show her into the drawing-room. Before long a caller appeared. Wing took the proffered bit of pasteboard and gravely compared it with his mistress' card, which he produced from his sleeve. At the end of his scrutiny he remarked: "Tickee no same; no can come in."—Everybody's Magazine.

Read Right Either Way.

Anatole France, who the other day celebrated his eighty-second birthday, once received a commission for a "serial," and took all the installments of his story to the newspaper office, drew his emoluments and went off on a long holiday. On returning to Paris he turned up the files of the journal to see how his work looked in print, and, to his amazement, discovered that, owing, as it was found, to the installments having been wrongly arranged in the editorial pigeon hole, the editor had begun his story at the end and printed the serial backwards. "It made no difference," the editor blandly assured him, when he went to protest. "No one noticed anything wrong."

Effect of Graft From Scalp.

The case of a wounded soldier who had to have frequent haircuts inside his mouth was described recently by Dr. Percival Cole, surgeon of the Seamen's hospital, Greenwich, in a lecture at the Institute of Hygiene, London. He had lost part of the mucous membrane of his mouth, and this was replaced by a graft of skin from his own scalp. It did not give him much trouble, but it grew so many hairs that he had to have haircuts inside his mouth almost as frequently as he shaved.

Highway Improvement

HUGE NETWORK OF HIGHWAYS

When Federal-Aid System Is Completed There Will Be 180,000 Miles of Roads.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

When the federal-aid highway system, provided for by the recently enacted federal highway act, is completed there will be a network of roads 180,000 miles in length covering the whole United States. The time required for the completion of the system will depend upon the rate at which the necessary federal funds are provided, say officials of the bureau of public roads, United States Department of Agriculture, which administers federal aid money.

An idea of what these roads will mean to the country can be gained by studying the effect of roads built in recent years and picturing what would happen should they be torn up and left in their former condition.

Should these roads go back to their former state and the motor vehicles which have come with them disappear there would be many changes. Many suburbanites would have to move into the city and there would be a decrease in value of suburban real estate. Cities would have trouble in getting their fresh milk and food supply. Much farm land would decrease in value and the effect on rural social life would be serious. In fact, motor vehicles and the roads on which to use them form such an important part of our economic and social life that it is hard to picture to the full extent what would happen.

Completed Concrete Highway.

Since all this dependence on highway transportation has come in a brief period of years and with the construction of 115,000 miles of surfaced highways, 60,000 of which are on the proposed federal-aid highway system, it can be understood what further changes will take place as the system grows to 180,000 miles in length and other roads are built branching out from it.

PRICE OF LABOR FAVORABLE

Indications Are That There Will Be No Drawbacks Along That Line This Season.

Labor costs on federal-aid projects under construction this year indicate that there will be no drawback along this line in the building of roads during the coming season, according to the bureau of public roads, United States Department of Agriculture. The price for common labor ranged around 25 and 30 cents an hour in a great majority of the states, being somewhat lower in the Southern states and going up to nearly 50 cents an hour in the Pacific states. The prices of teams reported were in a great many instances as low as the 1914 level. It is probable, however, that there will be an increase when the farming season begins, as teams have always been cheaper in winter.

ROADS ARE BIG BLESSING

The cost of keeping up American roads and building new ones last year was $4 for every man, woman and child—after deducting money from auto license fees. So reports the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce.

It is equivalent to a cent and a tenth a day for each of us. To save that much, few would surrender even the street in front of their house.

Roads are about the greatest blessing of civilization, also the cheapest.

Floods Delay Work.

Millions of dollars of roadbuilding in northeastern Louisiana has been suspended temporarily, owing to high water in several parishes. The floods may delay roadbuilding there for two or three months.

Millions Spent on Lincoln Way.

Expenditures on the Lincoln highway last year brought the total spent on this trans-continental highway since its dedication in 1913 to $40,000,000, or more than twice the amount that was figured necessary.

Venice Built on Seventy Islets.

The Getaway of Big Bill

By AUSTIN FLEET

Copyright, 1922, Western Newspaper Union

Big Bill was not the man to shrink from facing the music, but to die for a murder committed by that little rat Giovanni was an impossible position to be placed in.

He had been framed, and he had never had a chance to put the guilt where it belonged. He had been miles away from the scene of old Merriman's murder.

Kate Hands had framed him. But Kate had religion—sometimes. If Kate confessed—that was his only chance, as he lay on his cot in the condemned cell and saw man after man of his predecessors start for the death chamber with a wave of the hand and a cheery good-bye to his fellows in the adjacent cells.

He had told Father Lucas about Kate. Father Lucas had not believed him. Yet he could have extracted a confession from the perjured woman. Father Lucas regarded Big Bill as an impenitent sinner. Big Bill hated him.

That was why he had no compunctions about what he had planned. He had been a refractory prisoner, and, as a condemned man, he had been humored. If Big Bill chose to spend all his days huddled up in his blankets, the warden was not going to hale him forth, with two days before the execution.

Big Bill was waiting for Father Lucas at dead of night. He had told the warden he wanted to confess something—something important and urgent. Big Bill knew Father Lucas would come.

The guard unlocked his cell, strode to his bed, and touched him on the shoulder. "Father Lucas is here, Bill," he said.

A moment later the black-robed figure of the priest entered the cell. The cell door clicked. Big Bill got up.

"You wanted to see me?" asked Father Lucas.

Bill maneuvered round him. "Yes, father," he answered, and the blow that followed went home to just the place Bill had tapped so often in the prize ring. Father Lucas dropped unconscious across the bed.

In an incredibly short time Big Bill had stripped off Father Lucas's black gown and arrayed himself in it. He drew the blankets about the unconscious form. He took the Father's crucifix. He waited.

Would Father Lucas recover consciousness before the guard looked in? Those moments were agony. And the unconscious man was already beginning to stir. Then, to his intense relief, Bill heard the guard's step outside, and tapped on the door.

"You're through early, Father," the guard began; and, at the sight of Bill's face he started. The next instant a staggering blow had stretched him prone on the cell floor, and Big Bill had the keys and had locked him in.

Bill's cries meant little to him—for a few moments, anyway. Occasionally a Southern prisoner, Italian or Sicilian, lost his head. Hysterical outbreaks were not so rare that the guards would come rushing to the spot. Big Bill walked steadily along the dimly lit corridor.

A guard came hurrying along. Big Bill averted his face. The guard passed without noticing him. Father Lucas was a familiar figure in the penitentiary.

Bill walked into the warden's office. The warden, seated inside, did not even glance up as the black-robed figure passed. Bill reached the gate of the prison. It was now or never. A guard stood on duty there, with his loaded rifle. Big Bill had never seen his face—as a matter of fact, the man attended the short-term part of the penitentiary. If he did not know the man, it was probable that the man would take him for an assistant confessor.

He looked at him. "Going out, Father?" he asked. "Your pass, please."

Big Bill was nonplussed only for an instant. Then he put his hand into his gown and pulled out a paper. The guard looked at it in a puzzled way.

He was still barring the gate. At that instant Big Bill heard shouts behind him. Men came running—the imprisoned guard, the warden and, behind them, the figure of Father Lucas.

He leaped at the sentry, grasped him around the neck, and struggled for the key. Next instant he was borne down under a heap of men. He ceased to struggle.

"You fool!" It was the warden speaking. He was waving the paper that Big Bill had taken from the priest's gown. "Read, if you've got eyes in your head, Bill!"

Big Bill read with incredulity. He turned his pleading eyes on Father Lucas.

"Kate has confessed to me," said Father Lucas. "Giovanni has been arrested. You—may be free. But—I've got a better punch than yours, Bill, and if you do get out I'm going to teach it to you."

Ancient and Modern Rings.

The main difference between ancient and modern rings is in the use of jewels. Early rings were merely made of the materials; the hoop was heavy and ornamented. Later the stones began to be used, set in the material, but merely as an additional ornament to the gold. Then the precious stone became more and more important, until nowadays the setting is subordinated to the stone.

H. F. M'CORMICK MARRIES WALSKA

Father of Mathilde and Polish Singer Wed in Paris Following Her Securing Divorce from Millionaire Cochran.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Paris, Aug. 11.– Harold F. McCormick, multi-millionaire manufacturer of Chicago, and Madame Ganna Walska, beautiful Polish grand opera singer were married here this morning

Mr. McCormick is the father of 17-year-old Mathilde McCormick, who has just gone from Paris to Switzerland to meet her suitor, Major Max Oser, 47-year-old riding master. McCormick's first wife, Edith Rockefeller McCormick, whom he married on November 26, 1895, secured a divorce from him. She is a daughter of John D. Rockefeller.

Mme. Walska has just been divorced from Alexander Cochran, formerly known as the richest bachelor in the United States. He is the owner of a great carpet making industry at Yonkers, N. Y., but spends a great deal of his time abroad.

The married life of Mr. Cochran and the beautiful Polish woman lasted less than a year. They separated. Mme. Walska came to Paris and established a residence here. In the meantime action for divorce was taken.

Mr. McCormick met Mme. Walska when she was with the Chicago Opera Company—an institution of which he was a liberal patron. Even before Mme. Walska got her divorce, it was reported that Mr. McCormick was in love with her and would marry her if the opportunity offered.

Mr. McCormick underwent an operation several months ago in Chicago. As soon as he recovered he came to Paris. He is said by his friends to have been greatly benefited by the operation.

Dudley Field Malone, attorney for Mme. Walska, announced about ten days ago that his client had received her divorce, but said it had not been made final. This action was expected within a short time, but public notice was not made of the fact.

Mrs. McCormick, first wife of the groom, is still in Chicago. It was reported that she was to remarry and that her choice was her secretary, a citizen of Switzerland. This report was never confirmed.

Mrs. McCormick and her daughters Mathilde and Muriel lived for many years in Switzerland.

Early Church Utensils.

When our Puritan forefathers first began to pass the plate for contributions in the meeting house it was not a plate they passed in most places, but a brass warming pan. Into this the coins jingled cheerfully until someone decided that it was too cheerful and a long-handled wire corn popper was substituted. The artistically carved and velvet-lined plates used in many churches today are a recent adaptation. In the earliest colonial days no collection was taken at all and the salary of the parson was paid in pork and pumpkins, potatoes and peas, flour, dried apples and beans, with occasional "donation parties" that provided further luxuries. When church activities began to extend beyond the immediate parish it was necessary to collect coins, so the warming pan and the corn popper were both used to gather them up quickly.

Young Ambition.

A brown-haired, bright-eyed newsboy, not more than nine years old, was in the midst of a heated argument with the news stand man when the Woman noticed them. The man couldn't understand just what the boy wanted, although he was explaining loudly in newsboy jargon that he was very definite about the matter. Presently the boy took the man by the arm and led him to his choice among all the magazines that were hung about the news box for display. The Woman wondered what it would be—Diamond Dick or Racy Stories. Without hesitation the boy pointed to his desired magazine. The Woman blinked and looked again. The cover under his small, slightly soiled index finger said, "What to Sell and How to Sell It."—Chicago Journal.

Cautious Needed.

An old darky called Uncle Eb made his living by doing odd jobs. He could neither read nor write, and had the reputation of being extremely cautious in all his business dealings. One day he was employed by Mr. C. to do some work about his place, and when the work was finished Mr. C. handed him his money. As Uncle Eb took the money he said: "Mr. C, would yo' mind givin' me a receipt fo' dis money?" Mr. C. indulgently wrote: "I have this day paid Uncle Eb two dollars," dated and signed it. The old darky watched him carefully, and as he took the receipt said: "Mr C. is yo' sure dis am yo' own handwritin'?"—San Francisco Argonaut.

Miles of Wire in This Apparatus.

A million-volt transformer of 1,000 KVA capacity is being built by a leading electric company for its experimental laboratory at Trafford City, Pa. The windings of this transformer contain nearly 70 miles of wire. The terminal bushing is the largest ever built in the Westinghouse shops. Special machines had to be fitted to turn the bushing on this account. Its length is 19 feet, and it is 41½ inches in diameter. The static shield will be 10 feet in diameter and 20 inches deep. The bushing will weigh about 9,000 pounds when completed.

Force of Habit.

Baseball Manager—Say, four men stole bases on you today. You've got the longest wind-up I ever saw.

Pitcher—It's my former environment, boss. I used to be a maker of [illegible] [illegible]."—Wayside Tales.

ISLANDS LEGALLY IN PAWN

Orkney and Shetland Were Pledged to Scotland by King of Denmark in 1471.

The islands of Orkney and Shetland are legally "in pawn," says the Detroit News. They were pledged to Scotland by the king of Denmark on the occasion of the marriage of the Danish Princess, Margaret, to James III of Scotland, in 1471. These island groups were then Norwegian territory, and had been so since the close of the Ninth century.

At the time of their being pawned the king of Denmark was also sovereign of Norway and Sweden, and hoped that the marriage of the Danish princess would help to effect an alliance with Scotland—then a separate kingdom from England.

To help matters on the Danish king agreed to fix the princess' dowry at 60,000 florins (about $120,000)—10,000 florins to be paid before the lady left Denmark, and the islands of Orkney to be given in pledge for the remainder. But at the last moment the king could only lay his hands on 2,000 of the 10,000 florins, and was obliged to pledge the Shetland Islands for the balance.

The pledge has never been redeemed, and though Denmark has made several attempts to get back these islands all the negotiations have come to naught.

WILL MAKE GAS ON THE FARM

Flivver Fuel Can Be Manufactured by the Farmer From His Waste Products.

In a few years many kinds of farm waste will be converted successfully into liquid or gasoline fuel, writes Floyd W. Parsons in the World's Work. For some time alcohol has been manufactured in large quantities from "blackstrap" molasses, but now we find that it is possible to obtain 150 pounds of potash from each ton of this low-grade molasses, in addition to the liquid fuel. During the war the price of potash averaged as high as $1,000 a ton.

Federal chemists have found it possible to obtain gas by the distillation of wheat, oat and rye straws. It is not too much to expect that one day straw gas and gas made from cornstalks, corncobs and other vegetable matter will be used by farmers to supply light and heat for their homes, power for their stationary engines and fuel for their tractors and motorcars. Fifty pounds of straw will produce 300 cubic feet of gas—an amount sufficient to drive a light roadster 15 miles. The next step in this experimental work will be the perfection of a method of reducting the gas to liquid form so that it may be carried conveniently as a motor fuel.

Pleasantries at an Operation.

Dr. T. Victor Keene, Indianapolis physician and surgeon, once was being prepared for an appendicitis operation. He was a fellow among those whose loving hands were to gas him out and carve him up. So they were making grim humor about the cutting party. So pleasant did the occasion become that to this day Doctor Keene doesn't know whether he was placed under the influence of an anesthetic or whether he was just simply scared into unconsciousness and did not come to until after the operation. They began regularly enough to give him the gas and then he heard the following pleasant little remark—and heard no more until after it was all over:

"Hey, be careful there with that ether. Don't you know he's a nervous devil? Look out! Say, you'll sniff him out!"

Needed Help.

Standing on the slippery pavement of a small Southern town one rainy night, like sailors on a reeling deck, they were discussing a member of their party who had to retire from the scene of action. The principal speaker in the group appeared to be having some difficulty in keeping his footing on the swaying pavement. The buildings on either side bowed and rocked. The telephone poles did some sort of contortionist stunt and even his voice was a bit thick.

"Where's Sam?" another member of the group asked him.

"We took him home," the first speaker informed him between hiccoughs.

"Was he drunk"

"Drunk? It took three of us to get his hat in the car."—The Argonaut.

Men and Women Not Seen Together.

Unlike the women of some other Spanish speaking countries, the women of Montevideo go out in the streets. They go about in groups together, but not in the company of men. The Montevideo woman doesn't even go out with her husband. If she wishes to dine in a public restaurant she cannot sit in the main dining room with her lord and master. If she wishes to enjoy his society, they are obliged to engage a private room and thus maintain their dignity. This custom is carried to such a degree that in the theaters there are separate galleries for the men and the women.

SERVES TWO GOOD PURPOSES

Aerial Forest Fire Patrol Not Alone of Value in Saving Timber From Flames.

The aerial forest fire patrol is not only of inestimable value to the timber-growing states of the Pacific coast, but of great value to the United States army, writes Robert W. Ruhl in Leslie's.

If an invading foe ever strikes at the Pacific coast, maps, and similar data, direct products of forest fire patrol, will be of inestimable value to Uncle Sam. And if the millennium arrives on schedule time, and wars cease, then with the development of the commercial airplane the value of these data will run into sufficient money to make the expense of the forest fire patrol look like the German mark.

In another direction the aerial forest fire patrol is of material value to Uncle Sam. The great military problem in time of peace is to maintain fighting morale. To an extraordinary degree fighting forest fires calls forth the same qualities required in fighting an armed foe. Locating a forest fire in the wild western country is almost identical with locating an enemy battery; reporting a forest fire to base headquarters by radio is not essentially different from reporting artillery fire; dropping carbon dioxide to extinguish incipient forest fires—a projected development of the near future—demands the same technical skill as would dropping bombs of TNT on an army ammunition dump.

The aerial forest fire patrol, moreover, provides ideal training for observation squadrons. Liaison with the forest service is accomplished much the same as with the infantry and artillery in war operations.

INDUSTRY CALLS ON SCIENCE

Chemist Today Plays a Highly Important Part in Enterprise of Every Description.

It is said that whenever a car wheel breaks on a certain great trunk line the fragments are taken to the company's laboratory and carefully studied, so that when the next order for car wheels is made up, if structural weakness caused the accident, it may be guarded against. All the purchases by this railroad of iron, steel, oil, lumber or what not are tested by the chemists it employs and they draw up the requirements to which persons who sell the road supplies must conform. This is not an isolated instance. It illustrates the practicality of applied science, and the reliance of acute business men upon the expert opinion that insures them against wasting materials, time and money.

A class graduated from one of our largest technological schools numbered almost two hundred young men and women. Eleven of them took up special studies in this institution or others. All but forty of the rest found employment within a year. They engaged in the service of electric companies, railroads, cotton and paper mills, mines, machine works, iron and steel foundries and others of our most important industrial enterprises.

Paderewski Easily Disturbed.

Paderewski will not permit anybody to sit behind him. At some of his concerts hundreds of seats could have been added on the stage. Moreover, in every Paderewski recital no seats are sold in that part of the orchestra proper which is directly behind him. The piano is set at a forty-five degree angle, which means that in the extreme left corner of the orchestra, looking toward the stage, a number of seats are directly facing Paderewski's back. Those seats are empty for Paderewski. "If they are behind me, I think they are pushing my elbows," he says.

One night he complained: "Will you go down to that woman in the seventh row at the right? She is fanning. I do not mind if she fans in time. But if she cannot do that I cannot play."—C. D. Isaacson in Hearst's.

Embarrassing Moments.

There come to all people horrible tongue tied moments when they can think of nothing to say, and feel like a walrus on an ice floe, heavy, melancholy, ineffective.—A. C. Benson.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

BY MARY GRAHAM BONNER

COPYRIGHT BY WESTERN NEWSPAPER UNION

THE MUSIC SCHOOL

"I want to tell you this evening," said daddy, "of a music school in a big city.

"There is a little girl in that city who loves the extra hour of daylight.

"In the city people cannot have all the daylight as they can in the country, so it makes it nice for them to have all they can. In the country it is different. The work done in the city and in the country is so different, too.

"An extra hour of daylight means to this little girl that she can practice more. And she dearly loves to practice. And she is the sort to take music lessons, for I don't think people who hate music should practice. Music should be for those who love it.

"You see gas light means money, while daylight is free and money is a very real consideration in this little girl's family. They can only afford a very little gas.

"This little girl is one of over a hundred children who study music in the music school of this big city. Here the children come every week of every month in the year with the exception of one month for holiday time. Here they study the violin, piano, 'cello, and singing and the history of music.

"She Can Practice More."

Here, too, they have an orchestra composed of the pupils and a stringed quartette.

Twice a month the neighborhood attends a concert which is given by the pupils in the main hall. In this way the parents see what the children are doing and the children become accustomed to playing before others, and lose any feeling of stage fright which they might otherwise have to overcome when they were much older and when it would be much harder.

"And many of these children later will become famous violinists and singers, for here are children with great musical talent who're given an opportunity to learn how to play.

"They pay very, very little for their lessons, and sometimes not at all. And they have the best of teachers, who practically give their time.

"Scholarships are given. And the school is like a club, for there are magazines and books about and the children read before and after lesson time.

"Many are on the waiting list for the school isn't big enough to hold all who want to go there.

"There are children of twelve different nationalities in the school.

"There is a little boy named Benny there who has his beloved violin, which he won as a prize. He has great talent—almost genius. He is working for the day when he can help support his family with the aid of his beloved fiddle.

"Then there are two little girls named Rose and Mary and their playing is marvelous

"There is a little girl named Julia who is paralyzed from her waist down.

"But she doesn't complain for she thinks she is very fortunate. Her face shows her happiness and when I asked her what she did with herself, she said.

"'I have my piano lessons!'

"At the end of the season there is a prize given for the one who has made the most progress during the year.

"From all parts of the school, and out even to the river which lies beyond, one can hear the sound of music—violins, pianos, 'cellos—all being played—and from this medley of sounds one can hear the expressiveness of these little music-hungry souls who have found in the music school of this city what they most deeply love.

"For here they can follow their talents and they are given wonderful opportunities by those who are eager to help little music lovers.

"And as I know you love to hear what other children are doing I thought I would tell you about this music school where poor children who love music better than anything in the world learn to play.

"And when you grow up and go to big concerts I'm sure you will hear among the fine players some of these little children from this city music school.

"For music is the great ambition of all these children who go to the music school and they all dream of the day when they will perform upon great concert hall stages. And their dreams are going to be realized, and are being realized all the time.

"For one man who loved to think of dreams coming true started this school and it is being carried on by others who believe, too, in helping to make dreams come true!"

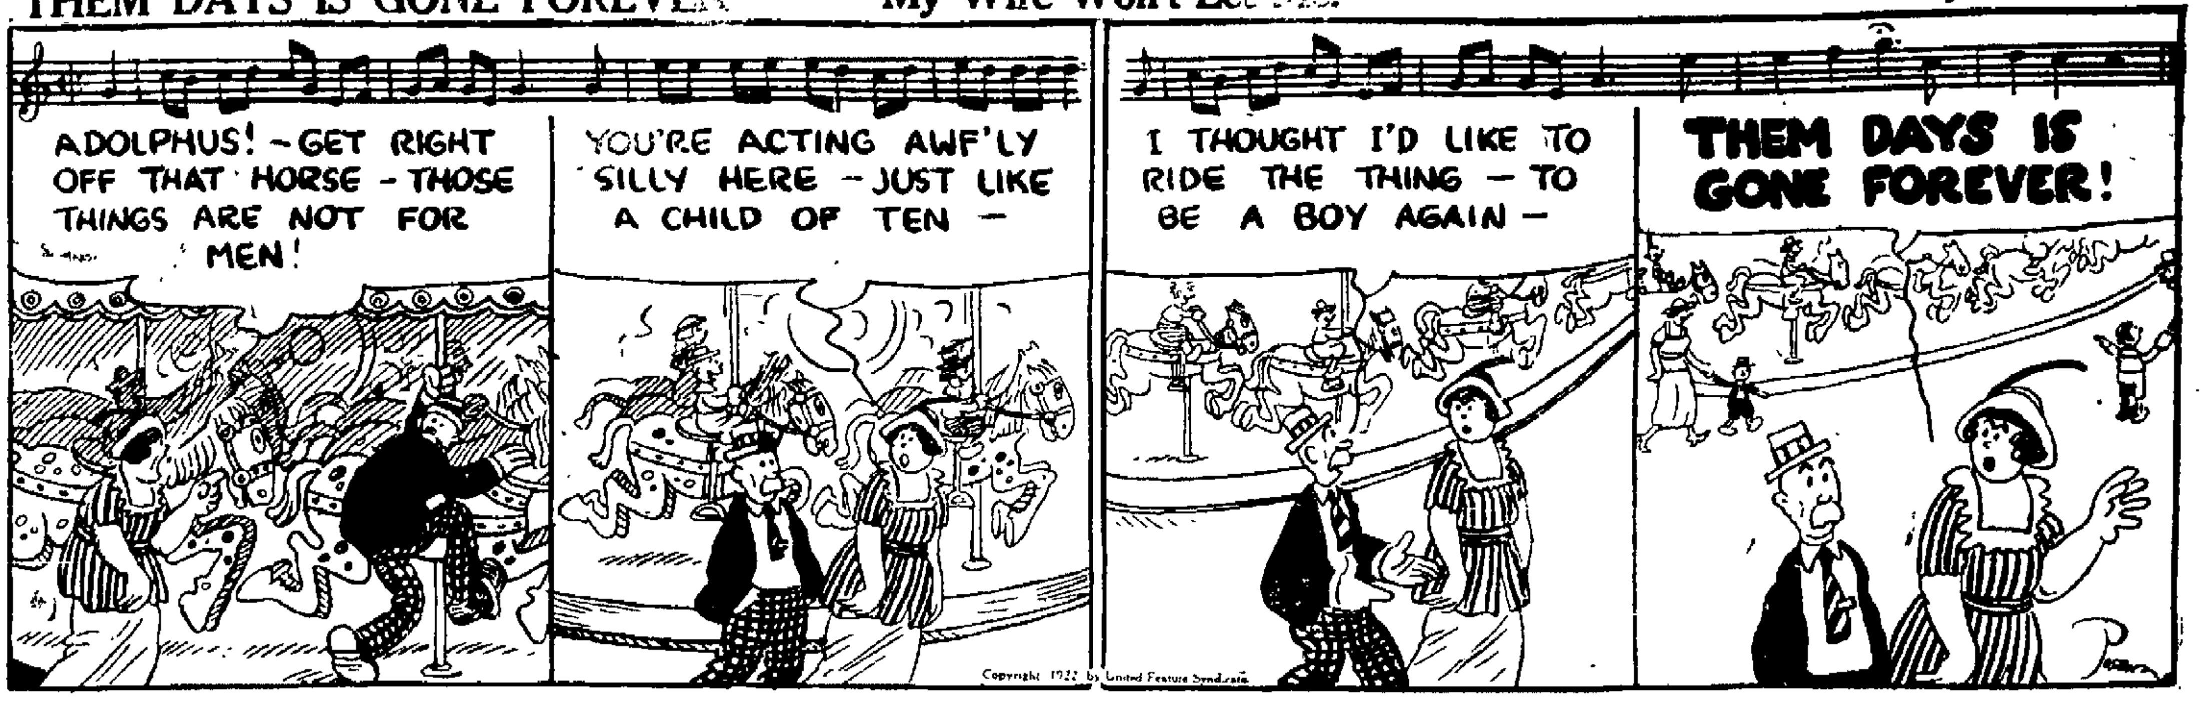
THEM DAYS IS GONE FOREVER "My Wife Won't Let Me." By Al. Posen



ADOLPHUS! — GET RIGHT OFF THAT HORSE — THOSE THINGS ARE NOT FOR MEN!
YOU'RE ACTING AWF'LY SILLY HERE — JUST LIKE A CHILD OF TEN —
I THOUGHT I'D LIKE TO RIDE THE THING — TO BE A BOY AGAIN —

Too many there be that we daily see
With selfish, hollow pride,
Who the plowman's lot in his humble plot,
With a scornful look deride,

But we'd rather take, aye, a hearty shake
From his hand, than to wealth we'd bow,
For the friendly grasp of that hand's rough clasp
Have stood by the good old plow.

MORE GOOD THINGS

During the hot weather frozen dishes make the most tempting of all desserts.

Manhattan Pudding. — Blanch, brown and chop two-thirds of a cupful of almonds. Mix one and one-half cupfuls of orange juice with one-fourth of a cupful of lemon juice, add three-fourths of a cupful of powdered sugar and mix until thoroughly dissolved. Take one teaspoonful of vanilla and turn the mixture into a fancy mold which has been chilled. Whip one pint of heavy cream, add three-fourths of a cupful of powdered sugar and the vanilla and chopped almonds, pour over the first mixture, filling the mold to the top. Adjust the cover, seal with a strip of buttered cheesecloth and pack in ice and salt for four hours

French Pineapple Cream.—Take one can of pineapple, one cupful of cooked rice, two tablespoonfuls of gelatin, one-fourth of a cupful of water, one-half cupful of sugar, one cupful of whipping cream. Soak the gelatin in the cold water and dissolve in one-half cupful of pineapple juice which has been heated hot. Add the rice, sugar and one-half can of chopped pineapple. Fold in the whipped cream and line a wet mold with the rings of the remaining pineapple. Pour the pudding into the mold and place in ice and salt or in a cold place to become firm.

Stuffing for a Three-Pound Fish.—Fry one minced onion with two ounces of diced bacon and a large tomato, peeled and chopped. Add two tablespoonfuls of butter, one cupful of dried bread crumbs, three-fourths of a teaspoonful of salt, one-half teaspoonful of pepper, one tablespoonful of parsley and three tablespoonfuls of hot water used to moisten the crumbs; more may be needed. Mix well and stuff the fish.

The Unconventional Professor.

One of the most extraordinary examples of unconventionality in dress was Prof. F. W. Newman. He often clothed himself in onion fashion—three coats, one over the other, and the last one green. In winter weather he would wear trousers edged with six or eight inches of black leather. During that period of the year his favorite outer garment was a rug, with a hole in the middle for his head. But even this, Professor Newman's biographer notes, was not such a surprising vagary of public costume as that of another professor, very dreamy and absent-minded, who, being intent on making some abstruse point clear to a young lady pupil, walked one evening round and round a London square with her, talking earnestly and attired in his top hat and dressing gown.—Manchester Guardian.

The DUNHAM HEATING SERVICE
MAKES RADIATORS HOT ALL OVER

THE Dunham Radiator Trap is one of the fundamentals of The Dunham Home Heating System. It is known the world over to heating engineers, as the device that revolutionized vacuum steam heating. The same reasons which made the engineers of the Woolworth Building, the imposing Field Museum of Chicago, and of nationally famous hotels, municipal buildings, industrial plants and homes, from Maine to California, prefer Dunham Heating Service, are the logical reasons which will appeal to you.

You Must Beat Constipation Before it "Gets" your Health!

Do you realize that constipation will "get" you if you don't relieve this dangerous condition permanently? Do you also know that pills and cathartics are not only habit-forming but that in their temporary action they aggravate an already dangerous condition?

What you need is bran—a nature-food—KELLOGG'S BRAN, cooked and krumbled. Bran is not a "remedy," but it is a wonderful natural cleanser that will actually free you from constipation if eaten regularly.

Results from eating Kellogg's Bran are astounding! Bran keeps the intestinal tract active; it sweeps, cleanses, purifies!

Physicians indorse Kellogg's Bran for constipation. It is the ideal way to correct constipation through food. We guarantee that Kellogg's Bran will relieve constipation permanently if it is eaten regularly. You should also know that the consistent use of Kellogg's Bran clears up the complexion and prevents bad breath from stomach and intestines.

You and your family should eat at least two tablespoonfuls of Kellogg's Bran every day. Eat as much more as needed for relief of chronic cases. It is not only palatable—but actually delicious! Its nut-like flavor is most appetizing. Children become very fond of Kellogg's Bran. And, it is wonderfully good as a builder of strong, healthy bodies! Your grocer has it.

Use Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled, as a cereal, with your favorite cereal or in countless palate-pleasing ways like in muffins, raisin bread, macaroons, gravies, pancakes, etc.

(I am something of a printer myself and of course observe these features.)"

The August issue, which will be put out this week, will contain interesting letters in the Ulster section written by Howard Chipp and John N. Booth, describing men and scenes of by-gone days a page of memory sharpeners, together with a page of Ulster county boys in New York and elsewhere, and with a page of humorous incidents concerning well-known men of days past

The magazine will also contain an article on Old High Falls, written by Edward J. Fitzpatrick, a brother of the Rev. M. J. Fitzpatrick. It should prove interesting, especially to old-time residents

FOR PERFECT BAIT CASTING—
THESE ARE THE REELS

TO CAST perfectly—without a back-lash, snarl or tangle—is over half of the real thrill and sport of game-fishing. To make every cast a perfect cast—is the added pleasure and joy which comes to anglers using the South Bend Anti-Back-Lash Reel or the new South Bend Level-Winding Anti-Back-Lash Reel.

It is impossible to make other than a perfect cast with either of these reels Both have the famous South Bend Anti-Back Lash feature, which in reality "thumbs" your reel for you. This device automatically stops the reel spool the instant your bait "lands" at the end of the cast.

The new South Bend Level-Winding Anti-Back-Lash Reel is a combination of the South Bend Anti-Back-Lash feature, with the Level Winding or spooling device of the celebrated Shakespeare. Upon reeling in, your line winds perfectly even and level. Come in and inspect both these reels.
